

FEDERAL CLERKSHIPS
OFFICE OF THE CLERK - LEGAL DIVISION
U.S. COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE THIRD CIRCUIT

The Office of the Clerk - Legal Division (formerly the Office of Staff Attorneys) for the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit anticipates hiring several attorneys for two-year clerkships commencing in September 2007, and sooner. Third year students and recent graduates are invited to apply.

Staff Attorneys Offices were created in the United States Courts of Appeals by act of Congress in 1976. Staff attorneys serve the court at-large rather than in the chambers of individual judges. In the Third Circuit, staff attorneys draft memoranda, opinions and orders to assist in disposition of appeals and other proceedings before the court, primarily in pro se cases. The clerkship focuses on federal constitutional law and procedures; areas of responsibility include habeas corpus, civil rights, immigration, and appellate jurisdiction. Substantial expertise is developed in federal appellate, civil, and criminal procedure, and some familiarity is developed with the laws of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and the Virgin Islands. While primarily a research and writing clerkship, the staff attorney position also entails case management responsibilities.

The starting salary for entry level attorneys currently is $54,521 (classification level 27-25). Experienced attorneys may be appointed at higher classification levels.

Staff attorneys have gone on to a variety of positions following their clerkships with the Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit. Those who have chosen to continue in government service have worked for the U.S. Department of Justice, the U.S. Department of Labor, the Environmental Protection Agency, the U.S. House of Representatives, and the U.S. Department of the Treasury, as well as for U.S. Attorneys Offices, federal and state Offices of Public Defenders, and state Offices of Attorney General or District Attorney. Several staff attorneys have accepted "elbow law clerk" positions with United States district and appellate court judges. Those attorneys who have chosen private practice now work for a variety of law firms both large and small throughout the United States. One staff attorney recently was selected for the Justice Department's Honors Program; another was chosen for a Skadden Fellowship.

Applicants must have a strong academic background and demonstrated research and writing ability. Maturity, good judgment, high ethical standards, flexibility in handling assignments, and a positive work attitude are required. Law review, moot court, clinic or internship experience is desirable. Course work or work experience in the following areas also is helpful: civil rights; post-conviction remedies, including habeas corpus; criminal law; prisoner law; employment law; and immigration law.

THE COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE THIRD CIRCUIT IS COMMITTED TO EQUAL OPPORTUNITY FOR ALL APPLICANTS.
